C'est la plus vertueuse femme qu'il y ait dans notre Ville, she is the most vertuous Woman in our Town.
Ce sont les plus civilizés que j'aie jamais conu, they are the most civilized that ever I knew.
Sometimes the same must be rendred by the English Superlative; as,
C'est le plus civil Gentilhomme du monde, he is the civillest Gentleman in all the World.
Elle est la plus belle de toutes, she is the fairest (or the handsomest) of all.
Que l'on die ce que l'on voudra, nous sommes sans contredit les plus grands Guerriers de l'Europe, let the World say what it will, we are undoubtedly the most warlike People in Europe.
Plusieurs, many, a great many.
Il y en a plusieurs qui ne s'en soucient pas, there be many that don't care for it.
Plusieurs fois, many times, several times, often, oftentimes.
En plusieurs façons, many ways, a great many ways.

La plûpart des hommes en sont là, that's the humour (nature, or disposition) of most men.
Cela touche plus les esprits de la plûpart des hommes, that works more upon the minds of most men.
La plûpart du tems, most part of the time.
La plûpart du jour, most part of the day.
La plûpart du jour se passa à contester, the greatest part of the day was spent in dispute.
Les hommes sont ignorans pour la plûpart, men are for the most part ignorant.
Plutot (lors-qu'il s'agit de choix, ou de preference) rather.
Je dois plutot aider mon Frere que mon Cousin, I should rather help my Brother than my Cousin.
Je mourrai plutot que de le soûtfrir, I will die rather than suffer it.
Je crains que ce ne soient plutot des envieux que des amis, I fear they will rather prove Enemys than Friends.
Il devroit plutot être marri de cela, he should rather be sorry for that.
Plutôt, sooner. V. Plus tôt (in two words) before the word Plusieurs.
* Pluvial, Pluvier, Pluvieux, Pluvoir, Pluvigner. V. Pluie.
